WORKSHOP

The next decade is critical for humanity's progress. Do not wait to create a mission for how you and your family can impact the world. Every minute counts as we humbly partner to redesign a better future.

—Renee Kaplan, CEO of TPW

The largest network of its kind, TPW is a global community of strategic social investors and philanthropists from over 26 countries who are united by their shared commitment to challenge the status quo, to collaborate, and to unlock resources to tackle the world's most pressing problems.

The work at TPW really makes you focus in on your true passions and interests to figure out how to get the best of your investments and how to be a good partner in the world, as well as linking up with a network of global leaders that are facing similar challenges and care about similar issues.

CASEY BOX

Director, Land is Life

Given the urgency of our global situation, wherever you plan to contribute, TPW can support you on how to do it well. A lot of the principles apply—whether it's funding in a developing country, within your immediate neighborhood, or choosing a new grantee partner. It is important we invest strategically and that philanthropists step up.

FRAN PERRIN

Founder & Director, Indigo Trust

What we found with the TPW Community is that there's always an action-oriented view on things. Execution, what can we do? Let's do it, let's measure it, and then let's do it better the next time around. That is what makes TPW an organization we are excited about.

CEO, GenePath Diagnostics Inc.
